

Year in Review Website Project

Worth 100 Points

Scenario

This Web project is going to require you reflect back on some of the major events that have taken place in the world over the past twelve months. Think about five different events that you feel you would be able to turn into a Web page. This site needs to be a minimum of six pages. You need to create a Web page for each event you select. Your homepage (remember to name this either index or default) needs to be an overview of the five pages that make up your Web site. As far as text, each of your pages (except your homepage) should have between 15-20 sentences on them.

These pages could include world events, national events, or even one or two personal events that were very important to you. Some page ideas could include (but are NOT limited to) the 2004 presidential election, the Patriots winning another Super Bowl, winning or participating in a school event, or going on a family or school trip. You should not include any information that has been included on a previous Web project. NO COPYING AND PASTING!!!

Additional Requirements

Like all projects the material contained within each of your Web pages must be school appropriate. This applies to all information included within the project and it must NOT contain anything that might be considered offensive or disrespectful. Projects that do not follow this simple guideline will receive a zero!

References that indicate where you found pictures, information, or other materials should be included on the proper pages. DO NOT copy and paste information from one Website directly into your project. Summarize information, put it into your own words, and make it meaningful to you and your audience.

Don't forget to spell check! You will lose five points for each spelling error found within your project. Also organization counts for this project. Do you have folders for graphics, pages, documents, etc., or do you have a whole bunch of files in your main student folder?

After you have completed your Web project, please turn in your planning sheet, which has the grading rubric on the back of it. (Make sure your name is on it!).

Remember your planning sheet is worth 10 points.
